Bingo hall opponents preparing battle plan 'Unorganized township' is organizing

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Albany residents are girding for a long battle.

"We'll bring our sleeping bags," said Florence Merrill, referring to the next skirmish in that battle -- a public hearing by the Maine Land Use Regulation Commission on a proposal by the Passamaquoddy Indian Tribe to build a high-stakes bingo hall in Albany.

Local residents want no part of the plan. They met Sunday in the Albany Town Hall to express their opposition and to try to come up with a strategy for foiling the plan.

It was the third such meeting at the hall. Little has changed since the first -- in January 1993, when rumors of the bingo hall first surfaced.

Opposition to the plan is nearly unanimous. A straw poll taken at Sunday's standing-room-only meeting showed all but two of the more than 60 people present opposed the plan. Of the two who did not, one abstained and one, Bethel motel owner Francis Dumont, was in favor.

But while feeling against the bingo hall has been steadfast, the plan itself has been evolving. It has now progressed from those early rumors to a 4-inch thick LURC application.

Jeff Rosenblatt, a 25-year township resident and an attorney, had called Sunday's meeting. He used the forum to summarize the application.

And to ridicule it. Rosenblatt noted that to make the case for the compatibility of the bingo hall with existing uses in Albany, the application compared the gaming facility to such local businesses as a gem mine, a gravel pit and a tire dump in nearby Greenwood.

He noted also that the application said the benefits of the project would go primarily to two communities: the Passamaquoddy Tribe and the Bethel business community.

"It doesn't say anything about Albany," he pointed out.

The opponents face a tough battle, Rosenblatt argued, but a battle "that can be fought and can be won -- the plan can be defeated."

He suggested opponents work as a team to prepare for the LURC hearing, and that they develop a case

Gardeners under the weather

By ALISON ALOISIO

It waited, of course, until most of us had to go back to work before making its first convincing appearance.

But that's just the sun's normal perversity toward working folks.

This year Ol' Sol has also taken to playing with the minds of local gardeners: peeking out long enough to warm their hopes, then ducking back behind clouds that bring only endless chill, dreary weather.

Weather not fit for a seedling. But there is hope. Tuesday's sunshine, coupled with generally moderating temperatures, should soon allow area gardeners to set their hothouse plants out into the real world.

Dick Bennett organically farms six acres in Albany -- but not yet. So far this season, he's been rooming with his garden. "My house is like a greenhouse," he said Friday. "Last year was pretty late, but this year is worse. The corn should have been in two weeks ago."

A cold, windy May kept his fields from drying out -- and kept him from plowing. And, he said, the last few days of nicer weather can't be expected to bring an instant turnaround. "Three days won't do it," said Bennett.

The spring planting season has been seven to 10 days behind, according to Barbara Murphy of the University of Maine Cooperative Extension Service.

One is still rooming with his housebound plants

Cold weather crops like spinach and lettuce have been doing all right, she said, but pollination and production for plants like strawberries are behind schedule.

"There haven't been any pollinators (such as bees) out," Murphy said Friday. "It's been too cold. And the lilacs aren't out for Memorial Day. That's truly unusual."

Murphy advises gardeners to be patient. She said crops like green beans and tomatoes "can just wait."

Keith Hodson of West Bethel has also been playing the waiting game on his nine acres, after planting peas and spinach early. But, he said last week, "it's been so wet and cold a lot of people haven't got anything in."

As for his warmer weather plants, Hodson said, "I have a greenhouse that's full. I'll put them out as soon as I dare."

After talking to the Citizen, Hodson went off on a weekend fishing trip -- apparently hoping to have better luck with the animal kingdom.

Greenhouse proprietors who sell to gardeners have also had a backlog of plants, according to Murphy. "No one shops when the weekends are gray," she said.

Leslie Kavanaugh of the Mountain Greenery Greenhouse in West Bethel confirmed that. On the other hand, it doesn't take much to bring out the hopeful. "The sun comes out for an hour, and people stop," she said Friday.

The holiday weekend brought its share of gardeners who apparently decided enough was enough. "We had a real good weekend," Kavanaugh reported Tuesday. "There are people who traditionally plant Memorial Day no matter what."

Others who stopped by were checking the selection of plants, but still preferred to wait for warmer temperatures, she said.

Regardless of how the rest of the spring goes down in planting history, the cold, gray clouds of May did have a silver lining. They slowed down the hatching of black flies and mosquitoes.

And that, said Hodson the fisherman, is one crop he's happy to wait on.

Former N&T workers adjust to life after the mill

By ALISON ALOISIO

Clyde Crockett now has a job he's wanted for years.

Sid Murphy, on the other hand, said she's "never had such a hard time as this past year."

One way or another, life has gone on for a group of former Newton-Tebbets employees interviewed by the Bethel Citizen last summer, after layoffs and other changes at the West Bethel mill.

The wood products company had experienced financial problems and was sold to Excel Dowel and Wood Products of Chicago last May. The building and equipment were purchased by J.A. Thurston Co. of Rumford. Layoffs occurred both prior to and after the sale.

Moving on to other things

Last year's layoffs hit hard emotionally, particularly for employees who had worked at the mill for more than 20 years. Recovery has understandably been easier for those who have since found other jobs.

Crockett, who was a planer operator at the mill, left N&T last year when he was told he would have to take a pay cut. Thurston officials said at the time N&T had experienced wage inflation 50 percent higher than the next highest for the industry.

After leaving, Crockett worked several months for Bethel Furniture Stock, then landed a third-shift custodial job with SAD44.

"I'm happy where I am," said Crockett. "I've wanted the position for a few years."

He said he's accepted the loss of his 21-year job with Newton. "You really kind of have to. It happened. There's no way anyone can change it," he said.

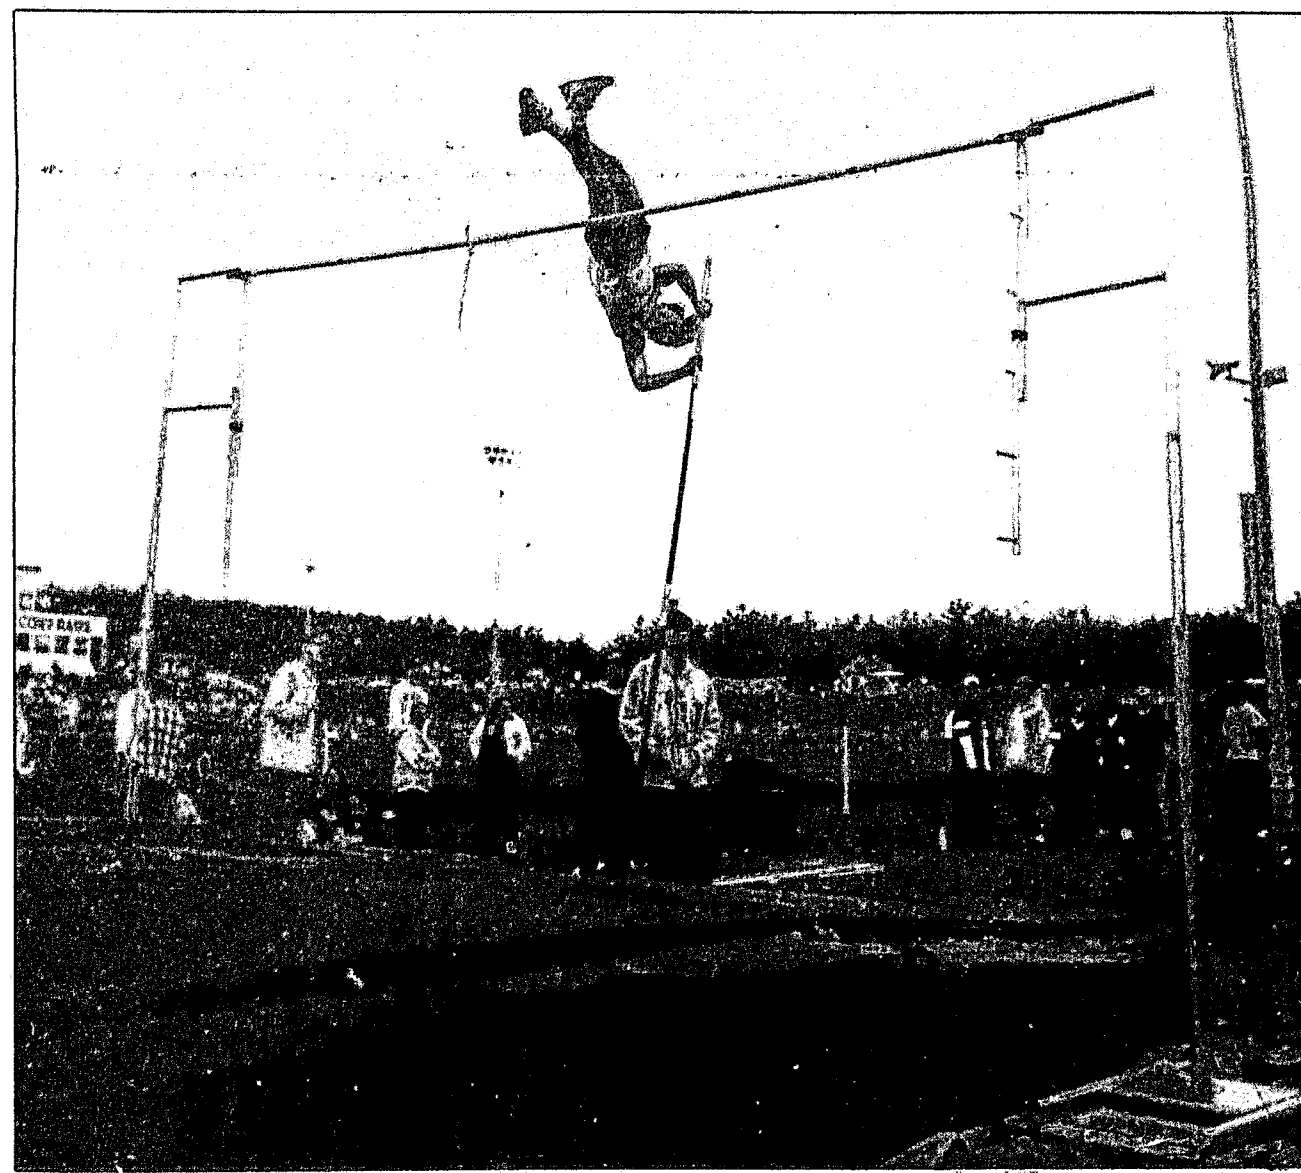

Beverly Bennett, a secretary, also left N&T rather than take a pay cut. She took some computer classes through SAD44 Adult Education, and got a job at the Penley Corp. in West Paris.

"I feel fortunate to find something as close to home as I did," she said. Still, she said, "I was happy where I was."

Machinist Tom Gibbs, a 25-year veteran, was laid off by N&T last spring. He now has what he describes as a good job as a machine operator at Grover Gundrilling in West Bethel.

Reg Westleigh initially left the company when, like Crockett, he faced a pay cut. But he went back

Otten to speak at Gould commencement Academy's 161st class graduates Saturday

By SCOTT JEROME

Fifty-six young men and women will graduate Saturday from Gould Academy during the school's 161st commencement exercise. Leslie B. Otten, father of graduating senior B. J. Otten, will deliver the keynote address. Valedictorian Amos Hausman-Rogers and student leader Michael Cleary will also make remarks to the class.

A member of Gould Academy's board of trustees, Otten is chairman and chief executive officer of the American Skiing Company. B.J. is Otten's third child to graduate from Gould. Meredith '93 attends the University of Vermont while Josh '94 studies at Wake Forest University.

Hausman-Rogers, the son of Paul Hausman of Albany and Lucy Rogers of East Stoneham, has attended Gould Academy for four years and will continue his studies at Wesleyan University in the fall. An Alger Scholar at Gould, he played varsity basketball and baseball this year and sings with The Portobellos, Gould's a cappella group for boys. He is a member of National Honor Society and is a student proctor.

Nominated by his classmates to speak, Cleary is a senior class representative and played for the varsity golf team. He is a four-year senior and member of National Honor Society. Cleary is the son of Kathleen Tremblay of Shelburne, N.H., and Gerald Cleary of Westford, Vermont.

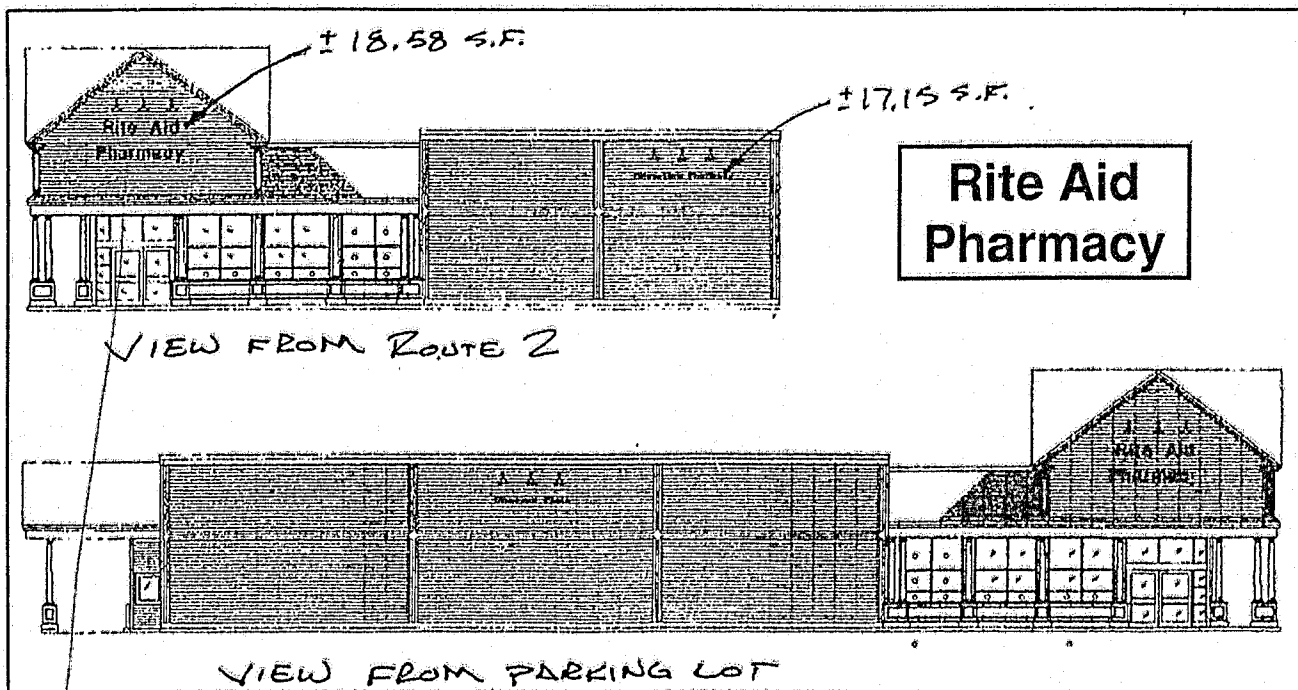

Gould's traditional baccalaureate ceremonies will be held at the West

Parish Congregational Church on Friday. The class of 1997 has selected classmate David Herberich and English instructor Chris Torino to speak.

Herberich, also a four-year senior and National Honor Society member, is a head proctor in Holden Hall dormitory. He performed in Gould's winter production, "Don't Drink the Water." He also was a star rider on Gould's snowboarding team this winter and won the Sportsmanship Award for his leadership and dedication to athletics. Herberich is the son of Richard and Barbara Herberich of Akron, Ohio.

Torino supervises Davidson Hall dormitory and coaches varsity soccer and baseball in addition to his teaching responsibilities. He is an honors graduate of Amherst Col-

RUNNING FOR SCHOOL BOARD

To the Editor:

At the beginning of this next month, elections for local offices will be held here in Bethel. My name will be on one of those ballots, as I will be running for a position on the School Board, seeking to fulfill the vacant one-year term.

Why am I seeking this position, especially in light of the cautions of many dear friends, and in light of the understood heavy time commitment involved? Simply put, I'm interested in the young people of our community, and doing what I may to insure that they get the best educational opportunities possible. I have two sons at Telstar, one in the middle school and one in the high school. Prior to our moving here, they had attended a private school, but I always struggled with the inconsistency of wanting to be involved in the lives of the kids in our community, and yet, not having my boys in the public school system. They are now there, and I'd like to have the opportunity to be involved.

My qualifications? I'm committed to this community -- as a pastor of a local church with an active youth ministry (Bethel Alliance Church), as an involved parent, as a member of the Bethel Rotary Club, as being involved in the newly formed "Intergenerational Activity Program Committee" within our community which is focusing upon the special needs among the children and youth of the SAD44 area, as well as those of all ages. I've coached young people in sports since my boys were young - including the Bethel Babe Ruth team this year. As a pastor of 18 years, I've been involved with kids within the churches we've served, including two years as a youth pastor. I've served on various educational committees within our church's denomination, including Christian education director for two years in our previous district. I'm a college grad, having grown up in the public school system, and then earning a bachelor's degree from a private college.

My desires in serving on the School Board? Two (among others) come to my mind immediately. First, to serve the individuals and families of our community by helping us strive toward a high level of excellence in education and our other school programs. Too often, mediocrity becomes an accepted norm, when in fact we should be encouraging and expecting excellence from all those involved in the educational process, including our educators, our students, and the parents/guardians of our young people. Our young people need to know that we want them to be the best in their fields of endeavor, and make sure we, to the best of our ability, provide an atmosphere, the facilities, and the educational quality necessary to guarantee it. I believe that a mentality of quality and excellence will not only effect our kid's education, but also our community life as a whole. Second, I also desire to do my part in helping to insure that we use our limited finances in the most effective way possible, maybe seeing some of those "budget cut" casualties creatively brought back into reality in some form or another, especially in the areas of music and some of the occupational oriented instruction and opportunities. This has been a disappointment to all of us. Let's do everything we can to turn this downward spiral around.

I realize that I may not have much impact in one year, but at least I can better learn the system, and possibly add some helpful input. I also realize that I am "from away." Sometimes that can be something to be cautious about, but it may also be seen as something that might be helpful. Hopefully, I would be helpful. If I don't get this position, that's fine; I'm sure that someone else will fill the spot very well, but, I would love the opportunity.

PK PROMOTES ACCOUNTABILITY

To the Editor:

In response to Kiersten McGetrick's letter, I fear her blatantly stated claims, which lacked any evidence, may cause readers to fear the Promise Keepers organization. I am appalled by citizens who write with such conviction and have not thoroughly researched their subject. It is dangerous to distort reality and startling that such a personal assault would be printed in a newspaper.

Her letter stated that the Promise Keepers organization is "one of the most dangerous organizations existing in our nation" and that we should not encourage our sons to be a part of it. Her comments show that she does not understand the concept of this organization.

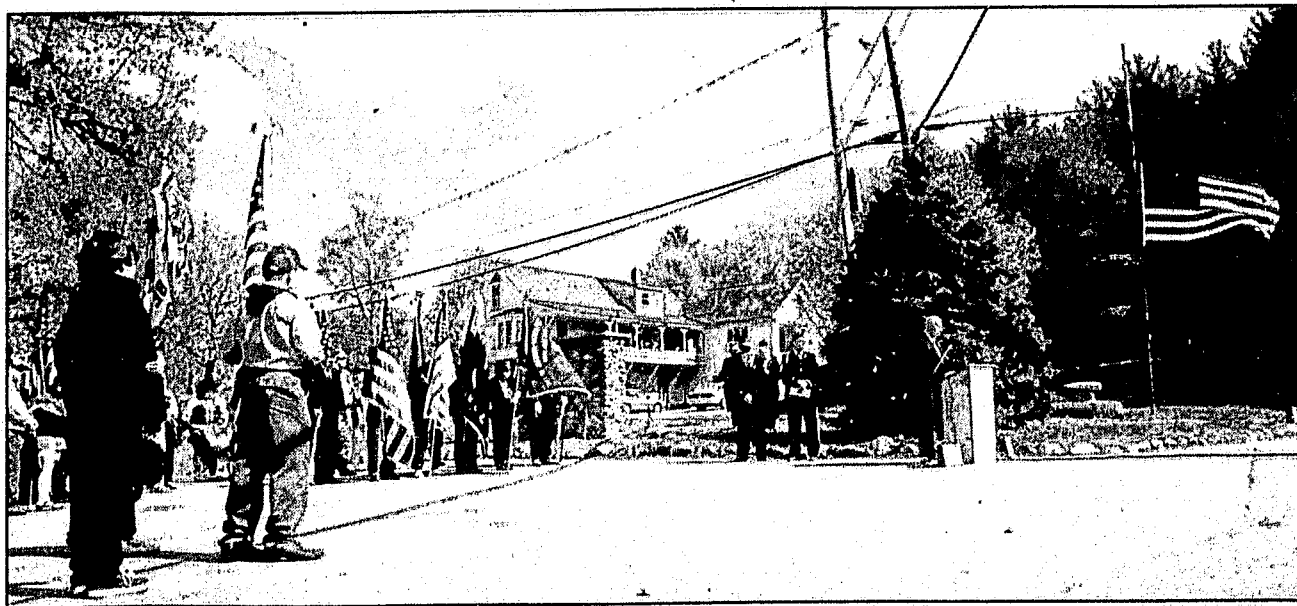

Their primary goal is to encourage men to keep their promises ... to God, their wife, and their family. As one looks around at the broken families amongst us, we do not have to look far to see families that we know personally that have succumbed to a husband's failure to keep his promises because of the many temptations and distractions that draw him away from his family.

Ms. McGetrick expresses suspicion that women are not allowed to join this organization, and that these men will expect their wives to become subservient to them. First, men need support from other men just as women support each other. In our society men are discouraged from sharing any deep personal feelings and thus become hardened to emotions themselves. Men can relate to each other on the same level because they understand what the other is going through. PK encourages them to be accountable to another man to help them keep their promises.

God's plan is that there should be a leader in the home. The husband as leader has an essential and competent confidante and adviser in his wife. A Promise Keeper will honor his wife and respect her opinions. God does not intend for leaders of the home to be master over their family. His plan is of humble submission, first to Him, then to each other. Promise Keepers emphasize humility and servanthood to the family which was characterized by the life of Christ.

My husband receives literature from Promise Keepers and I have read everything he has received. Some stories have moved me to tears as they tell of seemingly hopeless relationships that have been mended by the power of a promise kept. Several men from our area are attending a conference in Buffalo, N.Y., on June 13 and 14, where thousands will be encouraged to honor God and their families. I encourage every man who wants to stand with integrity (and possibly save his family) to make every effort to attend by calling 1-800-456-7594.

HONORING OUR VETERANS--With Greenwood's new veteran's memorial and the color guard and honor guard of the Jackson-Silver American Legion behind him, state Sen. Norm Ferguson delivers Memorial Day remarks Monday. Ferguson noted that more than 35 million men and women served their country in its conflicts, with more than a million making the ultimate sacrifice. Also taking part in the Greenwood ceremony were members of the Roderick McMillin VFW post of Bethel, the Jackson-Silver Post Auxiliary, the Mahoosuc Music Makers, the Greenwood Fire Department and boy scouts and girl scouts. Vera Cross, a chairman of the Post Poppy Committee, presented flowers to Poppy Girl Candice Lyon. Numerous other ceremonies were held throughout the area Monday. In East Bethel, Stanley Howe, director of the Bethel Historical Society, reviewed the history of Memorial Day, from its origins in the turbulent Civil War. Howe noted that as many as 16 Civil War veterans were buried in the East Bethel Cemetery, including three from the legendary 20th Maine.

The Legislator Letter Files

By MIKE BROWN

It takes a lot of vanity paraphernalia to run the state legislature.

Take the case of personal legislator stationery and memo pads. A request to view the printing invoices for these costs was denied by Sarah C. Tubbesing, executive director of the Legislative Council. And so a Freedom of Access was required, and so filed with the director, to receive these documents.

Firstly, no personal legislator stationery requests were processed through the bureau of purchases. The only legislative printing going through the state's bid process were committee documents, amendments, calendars, registers, directories and daily legislative records. Six printers supplied these for the 118th Legislature through 5/6/97 at a total cost of $625,047.

Personal legislator stationery is purchased as needed, however, by the secretary of Senate and clerk of the House without going through the state bid purchasing process.

Invoices received through the FOA law show that five printing firms have supplied personal legislator stationery, envelopes, business cards and memos since the beginning of the session in 12/96 and through April 1997.

The total invoices of Atkins Printing of Waterville was $5,046. Ideal Printing of Augusta had invoices paid of $3,474. Pettingill Printing of Leeds $112 (which included business cards for Peggy Kellenberger, a staff aide to House Speaker Elizabeth Mitchell) and Dale Rand Printing of Portland, $4,867.

Also, printing invoices paid to the Artcraft Company of Attleboro Falls, Mass., totaled $5,318. This company made the copper plates and did the printing for legislative leadership's 33 reams of gold-ink and gold-burnished, two-color personal legislator stationery. A spokesperson at Artcraft said that the plate making and printing process was "not unique" to their company.

The Dale Rand invoices are particularly notable in that Sen. Ann M. Rand (D-Cumberland) is the assistant majority leader of the Senate and co-owner and operator of Dale Rand Printing Co. of Portland. Whether this is a conflict of interest violation of the Governmental Ethics Law is not clear.

The ethics law does state several examples of legislator conflict of interest including "where a legislator or a member of his immediate family has a direct financial interest ... not covered by public notice and competitive bidding." There was no bidding process identified in any of the printing purchases authorized personally by Senate secretary Joy O'Brien or House clerk Joe Mayo.

The invoices indicate that the secretary and clerk ordered the printing from printers of their personal choice, received the stationery, cards and memos and the invoices which were then forwarded to Director Tubbesing for authorized payment.

Also, it is apparent from the 12/9/96 invoice of Ideal Printing that legislator stationery is not standard. House Clerk Mayo authorized 500 letterheads for Rep. George H. Bunker (D-Topsfield) with his photo for an extra cost of $34.

Also, stationery and business cards for House and Senate are not uniformly standard in that stationery and business cards of both Republican and Democratic senators have embossed on them the union logo of the Communication Workers of America, Local 10 of Portland.

Legislators, their staffs and enveloping bureaucracy are protective to a defensive ethical, if not unlawful, fault in not readily disclosing public information as shown in this case of bypassing state bid procedures, and in a former situation of not fully disclosing, and even denying, documents and phone charge costs existed on a legislator's public conduct.

If the people cannot expect ethics, honor and full disclosure from their elected and its bureaucracy, what else can the people not expect?

Prohibit internally illuminated signs?

BETHEL--The town Planning Board will hold a public hearing tonight (Wednesday, May 28) on a proposal to include in the town sign ordinance language that would prohibit the installation of internally illuminated signs. The ordinance currently allows for signs which have illuminated letters against a dark background, but prohibits signs which have dark letters against an illuminated background. The proposed revision would prohibit both types of signs, in both exterior and window installations. The board will also consider suggestions, made at an earlier public hearing, to amend the sign ordinance to allow for roof signs. Such signs are currently prohibited. The public hearing will be held at 6:30 in the Town Office meeting room.

Bike Rodeo is Saturday

BETHEL--A Bike Safety Rodeo will take place at Telstar High School Saturday, May 31, from 12:30 to 3 p.m. The event is sponsored by the SAD44 Wellness Team, in cooperation with the Western Regional Council on Addiction, the Maine Safety Coalition and State Farm Insurance.

Newry Town Meeting scheduled

NEWRY--Newry will hold a special Town Meeting June 30 at 7 p.m. to consider raising the town's share ($7,000) of the cost of surveying the Bethel/Newry town line, according to administrative assistant Sylvia Gray. Townspeople may also consider new ordinances at the same meeting.

Conservation scholarships offered

AUGUSTA--Although all the slots for boys are filled, girls are encouraged to apply for three one-week camping sessions at the Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond. Camping scholarships are available, and will offset most of the regular application fee of $160. The three sessions stretch from June 29 to July 18, and will be filled on a first come, first served basis. Activities include archery, canoeing and water safety, forest ecology, lake studies, wildlife and fish identification, orienteering, rifle and shotgun safety and instruction, fly-fishing, sailing, survival and first aid. Openings and scholarships are also available for both boys and girls for a program at the Greenland Point Center in Princeton. Brochures and applications are available from the Fish and Wildlife Information Center at (207) 287-8000.

Heritage park plans lecture series

BERLIN, N.H.--The Northern Forest Heritage Park will offer a series of lectures this summer. Programs are planned for Wednesday evenings, June through September, and will be held at the old Research Building/Crown Vantage Training Center. The series is intended to "celebrate our multi-cultural heritage and the working forest," according to Joan Chamberlain, executive director of the park. Offerings include Abenaki basket making, French Canadian Music and Preserving Industrial Landscape, to name a few. For more information and a series brochure, call (603) 752-7202.

Interest in organic farming grows

AUGUSTA--Two percent of Maine farms have applied to the Maine Organic Farmers and Gardeners Association for organic certification for their 1997 crop and livestock production. "Over 150 farms are participating in the certification program this year, and we expect more," said Russell Libby, MOFGA executive director. "The growing national demand for organic milk has triggered a great deal of interest from buyers, and from dairy farmers. Already 14 of Maine's 530 dairy farmers have applied for certification." Certification means a farm operates according to organic production standards. Farmers submit applications describing their production practices to MOFGA, and the farms are given an on-site inspection before final approval.

Rural housing funds available

BANGOR--The Rural Housing Service, an agency of the Rural Development Mission Area of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has guaranteed loan money available for rural housing loans. Low interest rates and 30-year terms can make home ownership affordable to people who could not otherwise obtain mortgage financing, according to director Seth Bradstreet. Since RHS guarantees the loans, lenders have less risk. The 1997 fiscal year allocation for Maine is $25 million. For more information call (207) 753-9400.

Rabid horse put down

BIDDEFORD--A horse in Biddeford was killed after it contracted rabies. The state Division of Disease Control said the horse had to be destroyed last month when its unusually aggressive behavior turned out to be symptoms of rabies. It is the second case of rabies involving a horse in Maine. A girl who cared for the horse had to be treated for exposure to rabies. So far this year, there have been 83 reported cases of rabies, but state health officials suspect the actual number of animals infected is higher. Last February, a Kezar Falls man reported the first rabid horse case in the state. The virus is most prevalent in wild animals, especially raccoons, skunks, bats and foxes. It is uncommon in domestic or farm animals and very rare in humans. Rabies is preventable in domestic and farm animals through vaccines.

Town volunteers ousted

WINDHAM, N.H.--There's an uproar in town because selectmen have begun enforcing an old rule designed to bring new volunteers onto town boards. To make way, some long-time volunteers have been told they have to give up their jobs. They include Margaret Case, who, for 18 years, has hosted the Christmas tree lighting ceremony, run the town beach, helped with the Memorial Day parade and led the town Recreation Committee. "After 18 years of such hard work they have just callously thrown me aside," Case, 56, said. When she asked for another term, selectmen said no so they could bring in some fresh perspective. The rule says someone can only serve two consecutive three-year terms on a board or committee if someone else wants the job, according to Selectman Ralph Williams. "We need new blood," Williams said. "If we do not have any, then volunteerism will dry up. It's as simple as that." He also said it is hard to turn out loyal volunteers who have worked hard for so many years. Selectmen also ousted 71-year-old Planning Board member Mary Griffin and moved her to alternate status. She said she is devastated by the board's treatment. "How can you demote a volunteer?" she said. As a result, other volunteers have quit and Case's husband, Thomas, is returning his Volunteer of the Year award.

Forest Service whistleblower files suit

WASHINGTON--Mary Dalton spent three summers counting eagles' nests and bear dens for the Forest Service on an island in Alaska. So she was surprised when most of her observations were missing from the agency's formal environmental impact statement concluding that logging planned there on the Tongass National Forest wouldn't harm fish or wildlife. In her 16 years of doing seasonal survey work for the Forest Service, Dalton had seen few logging sites that appeared to be more susceptible to dangerous landslides than these steep mountain sides targeted for clear cuts in deer and bear habitat on Baranof Island. She reported the omissions to her superiors. And when they didn't respond last spring, the forestry and wildlife technician did what she thought any citizen had the right to do -- file a formal administrative appeal challenging the government's proposed 2,000-acre timber sale. Her reward? A 30-day suspension and subsequent 2,000-mile transfer. "Forest Service employees may not participate as appellants or interested parties on Forest Service decisions," Forest Service regional supervisor Phil Janik wrote in denying her appeal filed in 1996. Dalton filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C. last week challenging the Forest Service's claim that agency workers are prohibited from filing citizen appeals. Forest Service spokesman Alan Polk said, "Her personal grievance is being evaluated. The regional forester is personally involved in examining the details."

From the Bethel Police log:

Nighttime hitchhikers get official rides

On May 26 at 9:30 p.m., police observed three males hitchhiking south on Route 26. The officer stopped and advised them it was illegal to hitchhike at night. The subjects said they were going camping in South Paris. All three were from Rumford. The officer contacted Rumford police to determine if they had been reported missing, and found they had not. They were then transported to the town line, and they continued on to South Paris. Later, a sheriff's deputy transported them to Rumford Point to meet one of the subject's parents for a ride.

Saturday, May 24

At 6:13 p.m. a Bethel resident reported that an unknown person had gained entry to her residence and taken several bottles of liquor and beer. Nothing else had been damaged or taken. Police could not determine how entry had been gained.

At 9:02 p.m., police were advised by the Sheriff's Office of a car/moose traffic accident with injuries on Route 2 just past the Flat Road. On arrival the officer was told by Bethel Rescue that the accident had occurred just before the Bog Road in Gilead. The officer then notified the Sheriff's Office, and stood by until a county officer arrived.

At 11:20 p.m. a Bethel resident reported her husband had called the residence to threaten her. She said he was very intoxicated. Police transported the complainant to another residence for the night.

Sunday, May 25

At 2:30 a.m., while on routine patrol, the officer was flagged down by a Gould Academy parent, who had called him reporting his daughter and two other female Gould students had been missing from their dorm since 7:30 p.m. Having knowledge of a juvenile party off the Intervale Road, the officer went to that location and found the juveniles. After taking them into custody, the officer ordered the other 15 or so locals to clear the area. The three girls were returned to the control of a Gould staff member.

At 12:25 a.m. a state trooper requested police respond to the scene of a traffic stop on Route 2. The Bethel officer assisted with a vehicle search, which resulted in the operator being charged with OUI and the passenger being charged with possession of marijuana.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies. An answering machine takes calls when an officer is not in the office.

CECIL ABBOTT HONORED

Cecil (Toot) Abbott was honored at a reception at Oxford Bear Lodge Knights of Pythias in Hanover on April 30. He joined Oxford Bear Lodge in March 1947 and became a 50-year life member this year. Abbott is a long-time Andover resident.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Oxford Bear Lodge chancellor commander Spencer Couture, who gave a brief history of the lodge and the hall. Presenting Abbott with a Grand Lodge Life Certificate and a 50-year pin was junior past grand chancellor Clyde Barker of Strong.

Oxford Bear Lodge life member Charles Burnham told tales about his many years of association with Abbott, including working together in the woods and fishing trips up North and in Canada. Others offering congratulations were Abbott's brother-in-law, Ernest Angevine of Bethel; supreme representative Allen Frizzle, Bowdoinham; past grand chancellor Norman Wood, Auburn; past grand chancellor

Craig Turner, Hanover; and deputy chancellor Daryl Pratt from Durham.

About 30 relatives, friends and neighbors joined Abbott in the evening's event, which included a luncheon with a specially prepared cake. Besides Abbott and Burnham, the Oxford Bear Lodge has four other 50-year life members. They are Ed Glover, Howard Glover, John Martin and Bill Elliot.

and worked for Thurston within a month, after reaching an agreement that was "satisfactory with everyone," as he described it.

He now works as a machinist at the Rumford plant, a situation he said has worked out well. But, "after 38 years in one place it takes a while to get used to it," he said.

No work for some

There are others who are trying to get used to not working at all.

Sid Murphy worked at Newton-Tebbetts 19 years before being laid off. "I just can't find a job. All they want is young kids so they can pay them $4.75 an hour," said Murphy, who is nearing retirement age.

She worked part time at a local restaurant for a while, but was then laid off.

Of losing her job with Newton she said, "I still feel pretty bad about it, but there's nothing I can do. I still miss everyone."

Edith Smith was laid off after 34 years. She, too, is of retirement age. Her friends, she said, told her, "You've earned it (retirement), so enjoy it."

How successful has she been?

"I went through a very traumatic time," Smith said. "I'm keeping myself busy, but it hasn't been easy." She admits she still has some bitterness over what happened. But lately, she said, "I think I'm much improved. I can look at it more in perspective."

Ethel Chapman, a 37-year Newton veteran, also found herself in an unplanned retirement. But she's keeping a stiff upper lip -- and not blaming anyone for what happened. "I'm making it OK," she said. "I've got no hard feelings."

As for the Newton-Tebbetts mill site itself, the saw mill portion is still operating with a crew of about 10, according to John Thurston. A total of about 25 to 30 people were employed in the past.

He lives in South Portland with his wife, Betsey, and children, Carly and Ross.

He is the son of Murry and Helen Cummings of Bethel.

GREENWOOD HISTORICAL

There were 17 present at the May meeting of the Greenwood Historical Society.

It was voted at this meeting to hold Open House once in July and once in August. The dates and other business pertaining to that will come up at the June 4 meeting.

It was reported that they have been doing very well on the dances. Another royalty check has been received from the Nettie Maxim book.

Vera Cross furnished refreshments for this meeting and Mary Mills volunteered to furnish them for the June meeting.

Frederick Burk of Newry will demonstrate how to make cart wheels at the June meeting.

that is "cogent, coherent and convincing in a way (LURC) will listen to."

The audience members clearly shared Rosenblatt's goal, but there was some disagreement on the matter of tactics.

Bob Folsom urged residents to tie up LURC's 800 number with their concerns.

Others argued for a "shotgun approach" -- hitting the plan from any and all possible angles.

Dotty Duddy, an Albany resident and outspoken opponent of the bingo hall, said Tuesday she and Rosenblatt will now work from the list of those who attended the meeting, and attempt to put together teams to build the components of a case against the plan.

"There's so much to be done," she said, "and we need all the help we can get. This can't be Jeff Rosenblatt's plan or Dotty Duddy's plan; it has to be everyone's plan," she said. "It's up to them."

Meeting next Wednesday

While opponents are focusing their efforts on the upcoming LURC hearing (likely to be held in July or August), there will also be yet another meeting on the subject next week.

That meeting, sponsored by the developer, Snake River Financing Corporation, Ltd., will be held Wednesday, June 4, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Bethel Inn Conference Center.

The meeting is also open to the public, according to Snake River attorney Jeff Kosow. It is the first of a series of meetings the developers plan to hold, he said.

Sunday afternoon we went looking for fiddleheads for supper. My sister Audrey had told me where to pick but warned me that down in Bethel they were nearly gone by. We found a low meadow along the "River" where the fiddleheads are known to grow. Audrey lives way up in Newry Valley just before the Grafton line and I rely on her to know about the wild things that grow in the area. Audrey was so right about the whereabouts and condition of the fiddleheads. There were tens of thousands of clumps of these delicious fern sprouts. After some time of wandering about the wet lowland, we came upon some that were not too far along. For those of you who haven't picked or eaten them, the fern heads should be up about three to six inches and tightly curled. We did pick a few that were farther along and they were good, too. We picked until we had about six cups (enough for a good feed or two). We had also drowned a few worms earlier and caught a small "brookie," so we had the beginnings of a good supper.

When we arrived at the cabin, we searched the cupboards and cooler for the rest of our meal. My friend found hot sausage, a sweet red pepper and a package of pasta. It was a given that we would use onions and fresh garlic. Together we concocted a recipe that we want to share, because (to our surprise) it really was quite tasty.

Italian Style Fiddleheads and Pasta: four links of hot Italian sausage sliced into bite-sized pieces, four cloves of garlic minced, three medium onions sliced, two to three cups of fresh fiddlehead greens, one large red pepper sliced, two tablespoons of Worcestershire sauce, one-quarter teaspoon ground black pepper. In a large, covered skillet, set at medium heat, place one cup water, sausage, sliced onion, chopped garlic and saute for 10 minutes or till sausage is cooked through. Add spices to your taste. Add fiddleheads and red pepper and steam, covered for three to five minutes till fiddleheads are bright green and tender. Do not overcook fiddleheads as they are delicate and the flavor can be lost. Serve over pasta or rice. Preparation time: 15 minutes.

Gardens are 10 days to two weeks behind because of the cold, rainy weather. Many folks haven't tilled because it's too wet. I just planted some hardy seeds that the cold shouldn't affect. Dick Littlefield has been busy spraying his apple orchard. Sue Burnham's peas are up. I used to be so tuned into this business of planting because I had to be the voice of knowledge. My customers expected me to know about the last frost in the spring and when it was safe to put the tomatoes out. I have to admit that I learned more from my customers than I knew myself.

Wilbur Davis on the Flat Road helped me when I was starting out. He always cultivated acres of fields and I could ask him about varieties and planting schedules. His words were reliable and he willingly shared the knowledge he had garnered in a lifetime of working the soil. I miss the early days of the business when there were so many farmers around to converse with and share the secrets of gardening. I know I am very lucky to have known Wilbur and remember fondly the talks we shared.

"Eat the weeds"... The dandelions are up! It helps prevent kidney stones. It offers six times the quantity of vitamin A, and more than twice as much of calcium, phosphorus and iron than lettuce. Also more vitamin C, niacin, riboflavin, vitamin B. "Ode to Dandelion ... The fresh green leaves of dandelion will give your bloodstream lots of iron, which makes this problem clear as mud. With all that iron in your blood... To lose some weight... can it be done? (Iron is measured by the ton). And to weigh yourself, your face now pales...for you must use the junkyard scales."

Call to Worship was held on Sunday, May 18, at 9 a.m. at the Newry Community Church with Pastor Rodney Hanscom at the pulpit and daughter Nancy at the organ. The Message of the Day was: "The Promise Fulfilled," from St. John 16:4 -- "But these things have I told you, that when the time comes, ye may remember that I told you of them, and these things I said not unto you at the beginning because I was with you." And a Scripture reading was given by Bob Monroe.

Saturday afternoon visitors here were Mrs. Sylvia Swan and family of Auburn.

Mrs. Norma Salway, a first-grade teacher at Crescent Park School, was selected to attend an Education Seminar at the Holiday-Best Western Inn in Waterville last weekend among other teachers from around the state. She invited me to ride to Waterville with her, where my brother and wife met us and I spent the next two days in Unity with them. We returned home Tuesday afternoon. Trees were such a pretty green with new leaves, and the lawns and fields looked so green and lush. It was a lovely trip in spite of the cloudy, rainy weather and cold winds.

I had a chance to call Mrs. Marguerite Scott, a former resident of Bethel for several years. She had just recovered from a hospital stay with double pneumonia, but was doing better.

Mrs. Dottie Adams spent Thursday morning with me and drove me to the Health Center for tests and checkup. In the afternoon, Mrs. Amber Bean of Otisfield spent some time with me. She leaves Saturday for Oregon where she has summer employment at Crater Lake National Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Preble of Randolph, Mass., were at their summer cottage last weekend. Also here were the Paul Parsons of Hollis, N.H.

The May sale on Saturday at Goodwill Hall was quite successful. Thanks to everyone who participated.

Saturday afternoon, we enjoyed a birthday party in North Conway for our granddaughter Caroline Sanborn's fifth birthday.

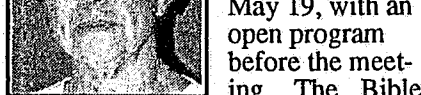

Sunday evening, a family and community supper was held at Goodwill Hall of the Universalist Church. Some humorous entertainment was enjoyed and a sing-along was held, with Jim Burke at the piano.

The West Paris Historical Society met on Monday evening for a potluck supper and meeting. The Rev. Gordon DeHaas presented a very interesting talk on the ownership and operation of a short-line railroad.

Ten members of Forward enjoyed their annual night out for a special treat at Town & Country on Tuesday evening.

Vern and I attended a Postmaster's Retired get-together on Wednesday in Waterville.

Our sympathies go out to the families of Emery Ryerson Jr. upon his death. He will surely be missed by his relatives and friends.

Franklin Grange met on Monday, May 19, with an open program before the meeting. The Bible was opened and the flag presented; opening thought by Bertha Benoit; opening song by all; Dane Tripp from the DARE program was the speaker and the program was taped for Channel IV T.V. Officer Tripp told about the program and how it is run. It is a 17-week program ending with a graduation for the children. It was very interesting. Dot Canwell whistled, a poem was read by Bertha, closing song, the program was closed, and the meeting was held.

The Woodstock High School Alumni Banquet is Saturday, June 7, at the American Legion Hall in Locke Mills. It starts at 5 p.m. Special guests are the classes of 1927, 1937 and 1947 and the Telstar seniors from Greenwood and Woodstock. Dinner will be served by the Legion Auxiliary.

The Woodstock-Greenwood

Senior Citizens will travel to the Chick-A-Dee restaurant on Thursday, June 5, for dinner.

The Bryant Pond hour on Channel IV T.V. is on Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. and Thursday at 7 p.m.

The Woodstock Historical Society has fascinating exhibits illustrating the area's heritage. Be sure to visit its museum this summer. Curator Larry Billings catalogues and displays items in the museum and organizes the guides for it. The museum will be open Saturdays from 1 to 4 p.m. during the summer. Everyone is welcome to visit.

The society studies the heritage of Maine and New England. It captures the atmospheres of this region in its exhibits and programs. Louisa Noyes, Mary, Robert and Paul Billings, and Cecile Lescault sold society products at a recent bazaar in Woodstock.

Greenwood City

It was nice to have a beautiful morning yesterday after so many of clouds and rain. Drops of water glistened on the grass and on the first opening leaves. The air was filled with freshness that follows a spring shower. I breathed deeply of the soft air, tilting my head back to look at the blue of the sky with the misty green of the leaves against it.

A thrush greeted me from beyond the shed. He said, "Hello, old friend, have you been waiting for me?" He sat on a low limb and proved he possessed all the musical qualifications needed. The softness and richness was in his voice as he glanced from side to side.

Over the lawn the goldfinches were looping in the sunshine. There are so many of them this year and so beautiful.

Across the pond I spotted the first blue heron of the season. It looked weary from a hard journey, ruffled feathers, a dumpy appearance, with no energy left. Another flew big and proud! This one lifted and lowered its feet and its long neck made a perfect letter S. I immediately named them Dumpy and Pert. All this made our spring worth waiting for and dreaming about for half a year.

It was nice to hear and watch the redwings by the pond's shore.

If you listen, if you lean close To the singing, springtime earth, You can hear faint muffled voices, You can hear sounds of mirth; For above the running water, Souls of grass and shrub and tree Are now lifting through the darkness.

In a mystic symphony. -- Edgar D. Kramer.

Robert Holt of Windsor visited us at the farm on Sunday. He brought beautiful red roses for his mother and for me.

Lillian Strait of Freeport came to see her mother, Rena Curtis, on Saturday.

Lucy Wilcox, my niece, graduated from nursing at C.M. Technical College Saturday evening. Her sister Kathy and cousin Nancy and I attended the graduation.

The fire truck attended a fire in Richardson Hollow one day recently.

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing

I'm sorry to report that another neighbor and friend from South Woodstock has died.

Emery Ryerson had been ill for quite a while and passed away Sunday at the Legion Nursing Home in South Paris. Emery was well known by many persons. He frequented Trap Corner Store for many years until he got too ill to go. He will be sadly missed by his family and friends. Emery and his wife Cleo celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary this past December. He leaves five sons and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Sympathy goes out to everyone.

One day this past week my grandson, Ryan Wing, stopped by for a visit. We had lunch together and chatted quite a bit. Ryan works at Wal-Mart in Oxford but is making plans to go to Spain to tutor English students. We wish him much luck. I'm always glad to have visits with all my grandchildren.

Joe Pete and Laurene Appleby came by for a visit the other night. They hadn't been down for a while. They are having some work done on their home.

On Friday, I spent most of the day at my sister-in-law's, Joan Poland. Tim Poland and Perry Ryerson are doing work on our bathroom, and I decided to get out of their way and spend some time with Joan. We had a nice visit.

Willie and Joyce Hathaway have returned home from their vacation. They were gone quite a while and I'm glad to see them around again.

At Emery Ryerson's visiting hours I saw many friends I hadn't seen in a long time. Among them were Bob Heath, Peggy Roberts, Betty Estabrook and Edie Sampson. There were many others, also, that I visited with. It's sad one has to go to a funeral to see persons they enjoy seeing.

I've had many questions why my quotes haven't been in the paper lately. I told them I thought probably the paper didn't have the room. They said they always enjoy them. Quote of the Week: "I've learned that you know you've reached middle age when your weight-lifting consists merely of standing up."

Varsity Baseball

Telstar 13, Mt. Abram 1; May 23—Wade Luxton hurled a no-hitter against Mt. Abram, striking out eight and allowing no walks. He faced just one batter over the minimum when the first Roadrunner batter of the game reached on an infield error. He went on to retire every hitter after that. Offensively, Luxton led the Rebels with three hits, including a double and three RBI. Jason Mullen hit his first homerun of the year in the fifth inning -- a two-run shot over the left field fence. Tony Buker had two hits and a stolen base and Nate Whitworth drove in four runs. Clint Myers, Jason Berry, Neil Thurlow, and Jeremy Curley accounted for the rest of the Rebel hits.

Leavitt 9, Telstar 8; May 21—In a key matchup with the Leavitt Hornets Wade Luxton hit two homeruns, good for seven RBI, but the team dropped an extra inning game to Leavitt by the score of 9 to 8. Tony Buker had two hits including a double, a stolen base, and three runs scored. Tim Hebert also had two hits and Nate Whitworth, Jeremy Lapham, and Jason Rosenberg each had one hit.

Boothbay 5, Telstar 2; May 20—The team saw its five-game winning streak come to an end with a 5 to 2 loss to Boothbay. Four errors, eight walks and a lack of timely hitting did the Rebels in. Neil Thurlow pitched four-plus innings allowing just one run on two hits. Jason Mullen went two for two and Jeremy Lapham stroked an RBI double. Clint Myers and Tim Hebert collected the other Rebel hits. Tim Hebert also made a great play at third base in the fifth inning to put an end to a Boothbay rally.

J.V. Baseball

Gould 6, Hebron 4; May 22—The junior varsity baseball season culminated in a hard-fought win in extra innings over Hebron. Tate Lacey was the winning pitcher, with late inning relief from Brew Billings. Lacey also had a strong day at the plate with a triple and three RBI's. Justin Gray, Parker Gray, and Andre Vandembulcke also had RBI's in the game, and Chris Brooks played an impressive game in the catcher's position.

Gould 17, Kents Hill 2; May 21—Jeremy Cowin hit a double and batted in a total of three runs, and Chris Brooks had four singles and two RBI's to lead Gould in a victory at Kents Hill. The Huskies benefited from a strong outing by pitcher Justin Gray, and Parker Gray stole three bases in the game.

Leavitt 6, Telstar 3; May 21—Matt Koskela had a double and Grayson Wakefield two hits as Telstar was defeated by Leavitt. Ross Baker and Kier Simmons had RBIs. Baker took the loss on the mound, but pitched well, according to coach Charlie Newell. Baker allowed eight hits and struck out seven.

Varsity Softball

Gould 9, Hebron 4; May 24—Gould defeated Hebron in the first game of the Maine Association of Independents Schools varsity softball tournament Saturday. Jenny Wheeler collected three hits, including a double, Megan Paquette had two hits, including her second home run in as many games, and Megan Edgar and Amanda Madore each had a double and a single in the game. Center fielder Lindsay Richardson and left fielder Molly Marancik contributed excellent defense to hold Hebron to four runs.

N.Y.A. 8, Gould 7; May 24—The second game of the MAISAD tournament was a dogfight to the end, with North Yarmouth Academy picking up two runs in the last half of the seventh to defeat the Huskies by the narrowest of margins. Liz Beebe had three hits for Gould, including a double, in the game, and Megan Paquette and Megan Edgar each had a double and a single. Lindsay Richardson was once again outstanding in center field, robbing N.Y.A. batters of hits on at least three occasions.

Telstar 13, Mt. Abram 7; May 23—Beth Howe had three hits and three RBI's to lead the Rebels to a win over Mt. Abram. Bekah Howe had a two-run double, and Dani Littlehale and Toni Vacca also had doubles. Winning pitcher Jen Walker struck out eight batters.

Gould 16, Kents Hill 13; May 21—Molly Marancik had three hits, including a two-run homer and a double, and Heather Wahler pounded out four hits and two RBI's to lead Gould to a 16-13 victory over Kents Hill. Megan Paquette homered and doubled and Megan Edgar hit a double and a triple. Riley Hansen, Liz Beebe, Lindsay Richardson, and Jenny Wheeler all contributed to the slugfest with extra base hits. Pitcher Megan Edgar held Kents Hill hitless until the fifth inning.

Telstar 28, Boothbay 1, May 20—Jen Walker threw a two-hitter and drove in four runs as the Rebels beat Boothbay. Sarah Richardson had a triple in the second to give Telstar a 14-0 lead.

Dave Herberich and Anthony Colby each scored two goals, with five other Gould players—Jason Hood, Cory Felton, Nathaniel Fredericks, Andrew Smith, and Peter Girard-- picking up one apiece. Vitalius and Hood each had two assists in the game, and Felton and Fredericks had one each.

Joyce Gouin and Lesley Dean went to East Hartford, Conn., May 16-18 for a family wedding of Catherine McCashland and Christopher Gerke. Saturday evening after the wedding, they traveled to Chester where Joyce taught school (a few years ago) to have dinner with old friends.

Lesley Dean is recuperating from a pulled ligament in her leg, which happened on May 9.

Carol Davis from California has been here a few days staying with her mother, Geneva Tripp, and her aunt, Carolyn Heino, to attend the services for Walter Heino on Saturday, May 17.

Lt. Col. Paul Barnard, Joshua and Jenna from Virginia also arrived here to join Cheryl and Lindsey and us. There were many family members and friends to give of their love and support and to honor Walter.

Molly Nelson did some painting for her grandfather one day last week.

The pretty little hummingbirds are here, and so are the terrible ticks, also a cute little chipmunk that chatters to us all the time. Anyone want him?

On Wednesday, May 21, the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War met at the K. of P. Hall for their monthly meeting. Tent president Lesley Dean opened the meeting at 7:30 p.m. The secretary and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. There were seven members present. At this time the Memorial program was done by remembering the deceased members with the laying of red, white and blue carnations by the Bible at the altar as the names were called.

It was decided that on May 30, at 6 p.m. the Daughters would do a Memorial Service at Hillside Cemetery at a veteran's grave, Mel-sor Brown, who served in the Civil War, and also to remember those who served at sea.

There will be no meeting in June as the Maine Department Convention is June 26 and 27 and the next meeting will be Wednesday, July 23, 7 p.m. at the K. of P. Hall. After the meeting adjourned, refreshments were served by the members.

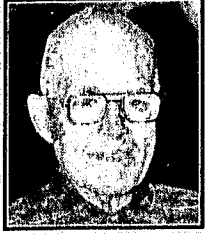

Here it is folks -- the summer church suppers for Stoneham: June 5-19, July 3-17-31, Aug. 14 (turkey supper $7 adults, $3.50 children) and Aug. 28, Sept. 11-25, and Oct. 9 (Harvest Supper $7 for adults, $3.50 children). The regular suppers are $6 for adults and $3 for children.

Hunt's Corner supper dates are: July 10-24 and Aug. 14-28.

North Waterford Church supper dates are: June 10-24, July 8-22, and Aug. 5-19. This supper will be Tuesdays on the opposite week from ours in Stoneham.

Saturday, Mary and Archie Lovejoy took the Raymond Macks to Dover South Mills in Sebec, where they visited the cemeteries. They also called on June Turner in Palmyra.

Sunday was the closing of Sunday School at the Mission Congregational Church. Hope Lovejoy was honored as a member of the graduating class, with a cake and a card shower. She also received her pin for 14 years of perfect attendance.

Faith Lovejoy received her pin for 11 years of perfect attendance.

David Small of Kennebunkport was a dinner guest at the Lovejoy home.

Oxford Pomona Grange will be hosted by Alder River Grange of East Bethel on June 3. This will be election of officers and with Rum-ford and Mount Sugarloaf Granges in our Pomona we will have a bigger choice of officers.

The Woodstock High School Alumni Banquet will be held at the American Legion Hall in Locke Mills on June 7 at 5 p.m. The banquet will be earlier than we usually have it because there will be a dance there after the banquet and meeting are over. We hope for a real good attendance.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends are reminded that the next monthly meeting of the Bethel Historical Society will be held on Thursday, June 5, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Featured during the program portion of the meeting will be a presentation by Michael Hathaway on the history of the Bryant Pond Telephone Company, which was the last of the old-fashioned, hand-crank phone companies in the United States.

Hathaway is the author of a book of memories of that company titled "Everything Happened Around the Switchboard." Anyone interested in attending this meeting is cordially invited to do so.

The Bethel Historical Society hosted an American Association for State and Local History workshop entitled "Making History with Your Community" from May 18 to 21. Sponsors besides AASLH included the New England Museum Association, the Maine Historical Society, the Maine State Museum, Maine Association of Museums and the Bethel Historical Society.

Contributors to the society sponsorship fund included Margaret Joy Tibbets, Walter Hatch, Arlan Jodrey, Margaret Wight, and Stan Howe.

The four-day workshop provided participants with an overview of some of the overriding issues facing museums and historical organizations. Participants came from as far as Mississippi and Missouri, but most were from the Northeast. Six represented Maine institutions.

Faculty participating were John Frisbee, director, New Hampshire Historical Society and Katie Boardman, associate director of programs, Farmers Museum and the New York State Historical Agency. Local faculty included Joyce Butler, acting curator, Maine Historical Society; Billie Gammon, trustee and founder, Norlands Living History Center; Marilyn Hinkley, director, Yarmouth Historical Society; Susan Davis, director, Stanley Museum; Debbie Smith, registrar, Maine State Museum; Cindi Young-Gomes, registrar, Old York Historical Society; Stanley R. Howe, director, Bethel Historical Society. Also attending the last day of the workshop was Dennis O'Toole, director of Strawberry Bank.

Sessions included in the workshop dealt with such issues as the purpose of the organization and how it relates to its community, management issues facing historical agencies, the nature of the community and development of the audience, public programming, interpretive techniques, exhibit development for small organizations, and development of collection management policies.

BASS JOINS AHHS BOARD

The Rev. Jean Bass of Bethel has recently joined the Board of Directors of Androscoggin Home Health Services for a three-year term. Serving as a volunteer for AHHS is not new to Rev. Bass, co-pastor of the West Parish Congregational Church in Bethel, as she has served as a hospice volunteer for a number of years as well as a member of the Ethics Committee.

"As a minister, my work shares some common ground with home-health nurses -- visiting people at home, being with them when they're facing health issues and other problems, being available at all hours -- and I hope I bring that understanding to the board."

I have tremendous respect for the staff of AHHS, who show incredible integrity and compassion in their work."

As a member of the AHHS Board of Directors, Rev. Bass joins 15 other volunteers from communities throughout the agency's tri-county service area of Androscoggin, Oxford and Franklin counties. Founded more than 30 years ago by a handful of local residents who recognized the need for home health services, the board of directors continues to be responsible for the oversight of Androscoggin Home Health including the adoption of an annual operating budget as well as policies related to clinical care and staff employment.

A nonprofit corporation, Androscoggin Home Health Services is the largest agency in Northern New England providing a full range of home health care including skilled nursing, personal care, specialty services and hospice care. The mission of AHHS is to help people remain safely in their homes and communities by providing affordable, high-quality health services which promote independence and improve quality of life. Although most of the services provided are covered by insurance, in those instances in which coverage is inadequate, patient fees are based on ability to pay. AHHS applies donated funds to the best of their ability to ensure that no one will be denied services solely because of an inability to pay.

HEALTHY LIVING

Fight Aches Along With Weeds-

Stretch Muscles Before

(NU) - A word of advice to gardeners: Think of yard work as a sport.

All the bending, stooping, digging and pulling you do to care for your flowers and veggies can be tough on your body — if your muscles aren't prepared.

"You need to condition your body to do gardening and yard work just as an athlete conditions his or her body to participate in a sport," says Dr. Robert P. Lynch Jr., a Portland, Maine, chiropractor and member of the American Chiropractic Association.

To make garden and yard work as enjoyable as possible, warm up before doing extended chores, Lynch says. And when you're finished with the chores, do cool-down exercises. "Stretching the major muscles of the back, upper legs, shoulders and wrists can be essential to avoiding injuries."

Here's How

Most gardeners either bend or kneel to work. Kneeling puts less "load" on the body, but whichever way you choose, Lynch recommends the following for both warming up and cooling down:

- While sitting, prop your heel on a stool or step with your knee straight. Bend forward until you feel a pull at the back of your thigh. "You want to feel pull, not pain," Lynch cautions. Hold the position for 15 seconds, then relax. Do it once more, then switch and do the exercise twice with the other leg.

- Stand up straight and grab your ankle from behind. Pull your heel toward your buttocks. Hold that position for 15 seconds, relax and do it again. Repeat with your other leg.

- Weave your fingers together above your head with your palms up. Lean to one side for 10 seconds, then reverse. Repeat two or three times.

- Wrap your arms around yourself and rotate to one side, as far as you can go. Hold it for 10 seconds. Then reverse. Repeat two or three times. (This exercise is called "Hug your best friend.")

Too Late?

If this advice comes too late and your back already hurts from gardening without warming up, options include: nonprescription medicines — they have fewer side effects than prescription drugs; applying cold within 48 hours of symptoms, or heat after 48 hours; and spinal manipulation.

"Your goal is to avoid hurting your muscles, but if you do, doctors of chiropractic are trained to manipulate your spine and help your body work toward healing itself," says Association President Dr. Kurt Hegetschweiler.

For more information about chiropractic health care and a list of member doctors in your area, contact the American Chiropractic Association, 1701 Clarendon Blvd., Arlington, VA 22209, or call 1-800-986-4636.

Grill With Flavor, Not The Fat

(NAPS)—We're all looking for healthier ways to create every day meals, right? Of course, the results must taste good, too, or it's tough to stay within those "healthy" guidelines.

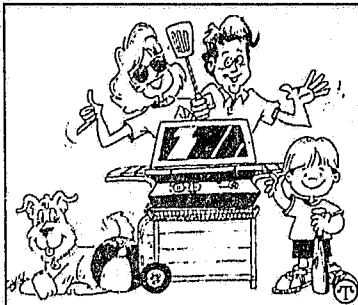

That's why it may be time to re-examine an old friend...outdoor grilling. You know grilled food can be good...but did you know it can also be good for you? Take, for instance, a nice juicy steak. Notoriously fat, huh? But when you sear it and sizzle it on an outdoor grill, excess grease has a chance to drain away. That is especially true of top performing gas grills. You get the flavor without all the fat.

We asked the experts at Char-Broil, America's oldest maker of outdoor barbecue products, just how else gas grilling contributes to healthier cooking. Here are some of their suggestions for when you go out to buy your next gas grill:

- Take a look at the grill from the bottom up. The exterior profile of that bottom casting should be more funnel-shaped than flat. That means grease will evacuate easily and not build up in the bottom of the grill.

- Gas grills have lava rocks or briquets inside which are there to add outdoorsy flavor. But the closer to the cooking grid they are, the more likely they are to kick flames back up into the food. Excessive flare ups can char and dry out your food very quickly. Look for a grill with the briquets below the burner and you'll cut down on this problem.

- Choose a gas grill with upper racks. That means you can cook delicate foods that require less intense heat...foods like seafoods and vegetables. In other words, expand the types of foods you cook outdoors to include those that are low fat to begin with.

- If the top casting of the grill is big enough, and if you choose one with dual burners, you can probably use it for indirect cooking. That means you can turn off one of the burners. Then place, say, a turkey on the grid over that burner while the other burner is on. Close the lid and cook away. The turkey will turn out as tender as if you did it indoors, but it won't sit in a roaster full of grease. Again, healthier cooking.

- The grill should be able to handle a rotisserie (Char-Broil even manufactures a special rotisserie burner that fits many of today's grills). Rotisserie cooking is one of the healthiest ways to feed your family...it slow cooks, dripping away any excess grease, without the chicken or roast being burned from the flames below.

For more information on gas grilling, write to: Gas Grill Tips, Char-Broil, P.O. Box 1240, Columbus, GA 31902.

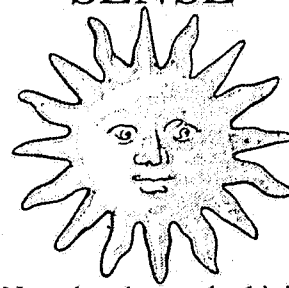

TURKEY BURGERS

Try these burgers on a whole wheat pita or roll with lettuce, tomato and onion.

- 1 pound ground turkey
- 1/2 cup dried bread crumbs (whole grain)
- 3 T finely chopped onion
- 2 T ketchup
- 1 T lemon juice
- 1 t Worcestershire sauce
- 1 t soy sauce
- 1/2 t paprika
- 1/2 t Tabasco sauce
- Freshly ground black pepper to taste

Combine all ingredients and shape into six patties. Broil or grill the burgers until they are done, about five minutes on each side.

SUNSCREEN SENSE

Now that the sun is shining on us a little bit more we should remember that sunscreen will keep our skin healthy.

Here are some reminders:
Always cover up when your shadow is shorter than you are, that way you will avoid the sun's most direct and harmful rays.

Apply sunscreen before you see red, because skin damage occurs before you burn.

Apply your sunscreen every 60 to 90 minutes while in the sun, after swimming or after activities that cause perspiration.

Remember reapplying sunscreen does not allow you additional time in the sun or double your SPF level. So remember be careful, limit your time in the sun and use sunscreen.

Allergy Alert: Sneezin' Season Relief

(NAPS)—Are you developing an allergy to people who say, "It's only an allergy?"

Your nose knows better. So do your sensitive eyes. When allergies strike, eyes can become as watery as dripping faucets and sneezes can reach the speed of gale-force winds.

According to a recent survey, most allergy sufferers agree that "people don't realize how difficult life can be for an allergy sufferer." These questions and answers may help.

Q: What causes an allergy attack?

A: Allergies that hit during the spring and fall are called seasonal allergic rhinitis.

This condition is caused by the body's reaction to allergens which are breathed in or absorbed through the skin. Allergens can include grass and tree pollens, molds and ragweed pollen—all difficult to avoid.

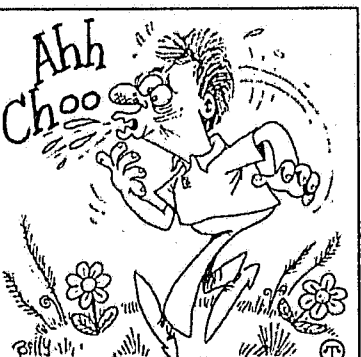

Q: What are the symptoms?

A: Symptoms typically affect the nose, but patients also experience itchy, watery eyes and inflamed sinuses or ears. Allergy sufferers agree that symptoms can interfere with driving, eating, exercising and sleeping.

Q: How are symptoms treated?

A: Allergies can be treated with over-the-counter products, allergy shots, or prescription products, including antihistamines, decongestants, or antihistamine/decongestant combinations. When it comes to choosing the most important attribute of an ideal allergy medication, 41 percent of allergy sufferers said they value safety.

One of the latest prescription antihistamines, Allegra™ (fexofenadine hydrochloride), offers quick and effective relief without causing drowsiness or interacting with certain other medications.

"Allegra" appears to be a safe medication that reduces seasonal allergy symptoms of sneezing, runny nose and nasal and eye itching," said Dr. Michael Kaliner of the Institute for Asthma and Allergy, Washington, D.C.

Allegra™ is safe to take with medications like the antibiotic erythromycin and the antifungal ketoconazole.

Unlike other prescription non-sedating antihistamines, Allegra™ is only negligibly metabolized by the liver. The most commonly reported adverse experiences for Allegra™ and placebo are cold or flu (2.5 percent vs. 1.5 percent), nausea (1.6 percent vs. 1.5 percent), and menstrual pain (1.5 percent vs. 0.3 percent). It can be used safely by a wide range of patients. It also costs 15 percent less than other non-sedating antihistamine brands.

Q: How can I get more information?

WATER Drink it Up!

You should drink up to 8 glasses of water a day for many reasons;

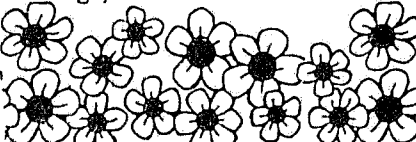

- (1) it protects your skin to ward off wrinkles and lubricates your joints
- (2) it helps in digestion and helps prevent kidney stones;
- (3) it has no calories, stimulants, sugar, it is pure;
- (4) it helps your body cool itself.

When you don't drink enough water you can lose your energy, become irritable, get a headache, and even become dizzy.

So drink to your health!

Diabetes: new advances show promise for treatment

With all the recent advances in diabetes treatment, is there a cure around the corner?

Diabetes is a disease related to the body's inability to either produce or effectively use insulin, the hormone essential for metabolizing glucose, one of the body's principal fuels. Type I, or insulin dependent, diabetes occurs when the pancreas is unable to produce insulin. Daily insulin injections, along with diet and exercise, are required to control blood glucose levels in the body. Type II, or non-insulin dependent, diabetes occurs when the pancreas produces insulin but the body does not use it effectively. Type II diabetics typically do not require injections (although there are often exceptions) and should be able to control the disease through diet, exercise and, if needed, medications that increase the body's ability to utilize insulin.

There are nearly 16 million diabetics in the United States, half of them undiagnosed. Type II diabetics make up to 90 to 95 percent of all diabetics. Among the more common symptoms of the disease are excessive thirst, frequent urination, unexplained weight loss, fatigue and vulnerability to infections. Some people with mild diabetes -- usually Type II -- do not have any noticeable symptoms. Routine blood tests often alert physicians to the condition.

The long-term complications of diabetes can include blindness, heart disease, kidney failure and nerve damage leading to amputation. Recent studies, including the 10-year, multi-center Diabetes Control and Complications Trial completed in 1993, show that these complications may be greatly reduced by maintaining normal blood glucose levels.

Stuart Chipkin, MD, director of clinical endocrinology and diabetes at Boston Medical Center, says there are two reasons to treat blood sugar levels in diabetics: 1) to prevent blood sugar variation, which produces symptoms from low sugar levels (hypoglycemia) or high sugar levels (hyperglycemia) and 2) to reduce the risk of developing life-threatening complications.

"Treating blood sugar levels and reducing the risk of complications are the two most important components of treating diabetes," says Chipkin; however, there are promising developments in the treatment of the disease that may make life easier for diabetics.

In one of the more recent studies, islet cells -- the source of insulin in the pancreas -- were transplanted into the pancreases of mice to help produce insulin, which metabolizes sugar and helps the body use glucose as a fuel. No evidence to date has shown what effect islet cell transplants might have on humans.

Another advancement focuses on studies of the effects of the nutritional supplement chromium, which has been shown to normalize glucose and insulin levels in Type II diabetics. Chipkin says that chromium use has not been studied well enough to determine if the element persistently improves blood sugar and decreases complications.

A recent exciting advancement in diabetes treatment, Chipkin says, is the development of a new, short-acting insulin called lys-pro. A derivative of regular insulin, lys-pro has a quick onset and fast peak, which makes it ideal for diabetics trying to control mealtime increases in blood sugar. Lys-pro insulin begins working in five to 10 minutes, peaks at 30 to 50 minutes and has a duration of about one hour.

"If you have to have diabetes, this is the best time in the past 100 years to have it, with better insulin regimens, better blood glucose monitoring equipment and better approaches to preventing and treating complications. In the next 10 to 15 years, we may have things that make an even greater difference," says Chipkin.

Despite these advances, he says, keeping blood sugar levels as close to normal as possible is still the best treatment for diabetics. For patients not obtaining the blood sugar control they desire, Chipkin says working with professionals trained in diabetes management may improve glucose levels and minimize the risk of complications.

This "Matters of Health" was written in cooperation with Stuart Chipkin, MD, director of clinical endocrinology and diabetes at Boston Medical Center. Readers with questions about diabetes or who wish to discuss other health issues, may contact the Boston Medical Center Health Connection at 617-638-6767.

Mr. & Mrs. Neil McMahon

Heidi Kim, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. Bruce Kim of Newry, was married to Neil E. McMahon, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul McMahon of Newington, Conn. on June 29, 1996. The Rev. Brenden Bass performed the ceremony at the West Parish Congregational Church in Bethel. The wedding party were friends and family of the bride and groom: Michelle Kornbleuth, Mia Ruggeri, Heather Chamberlain, Paul and Joseph McMahon and W. Todd Kim. The groom's father, Paul McMahon accompanied the groom's cousin Raymond McMahon in the singing of Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring. A reception at the Bethel Inn followed.

The couple graduated from the University of Hartford in Connecticut. The bride, 28, received a bachelors degree in fine arts. She graduated from Gould Academy in 1987. The groom, also 28, received a bachelor's degree in music. The couple moved to New York City's Greenwich Village in August, where they are both currently teachers. They also perform together in a band called The Drennonns.

Day - Walley

Dennis Walley and Lorraine Day announce their engagement and upcoming wedding. Dennis is the son of Steve Walley of Jessup, Pa., and Marcia Hunt of Charlotte, N.C. Lorraine is the daughter of John and Susan Day of Bethel.

A Sept. 27, 1997, wedding is planned.

Mr. & Mrs. Samuel DiPhilippo

Deborah Wheeler and Samuel DiPhilippo of Annapolis, Md., were united in marriage on Sept. 14, 1996, at West Parish Congregational Church, Bethel. The Rev. John Williams officiated at the 1 p.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Maryvonne and Dennis Wheeler of Bethel. Parents of the bridegroom are Sabato and Fran DiPhilippo of Portland.

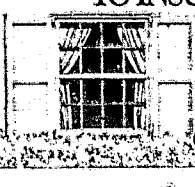

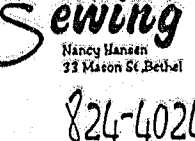

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an off-the-shoulder, white silk shantung dress with beaded bodice and detachable train. She carried a bouquet of lilies, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Sheila Douglass, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Donna Wheeler, sister-in-law of the bride, and Katherine DiPhilippo, sister of the groom.

Jerry DiPhilippo, brother of the groom, served as best man and ushers were Mike DiPhilippo, brother of the groom and Kerry Audet, a friend.

A reception was held at the NTL Founders House, Bethel. The newlyweds honeymooned in New Orleans and are residing in Annapolis, Md.

However, the thought of "This is the day which the Lord has made, we will rejoice and be glad in it," goes far beyond the weather.

Let us look at Psalm 8, verses 1 then 3-5. "Oh Lord our Lord, how excellent is Thy name in all the earth! Who has set Thy glory above the heavens?"

When I consider the heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars which Thou hast ordained: What is man that Thou art mindful of him? Or the son of man that Thou

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words comfort and hope for your daily life.

We arise in the morning, and undoubtedly, if it is light enough to see, look out of the window to check the weather.

Will we find bright sunshine, rain or snow, dull clouds? Or is it too early to see the sun up, but perhaps a clear, blue sky will offer a pleasant day.

We could even be gazing into a beautiful sunrise.

Whatever we see, it could well set our disposition for our start of a new day.

How would we react to the thought: "This is the day that the Lord has made, we will rejoice and be glad in it."

When the day is dark and stormy, or otherwise displeasing to us, it is difficult for us to accept it in a joyful way, or to be glad in it.

We have this spring seen much unpleasant, disappointing weather. Few mornings have given us reason to sing, "Oh What a Beautiful Morning."

However, the thought of "This is the day which the Lord has made, we will rejoice and be glad in it," goes far beyond the weather.

Let us look at Psalm 8, verses 1 then 3-5. "Oh Lord our Lord, how excellent is Thy name in all the earth! Who has set Thy glory above the heavens?"

When I consider the heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars which Thou hast ordained: What is man that Thou art mindful of him? Or the son of man that Thou visitest him? For Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour."

Can we find a good answer to this question? What is man that God placed him above all other creatures?

Can we live up to God's expectations?

In ways of man we have come a long way. Look at the vast changes that have changed our way of living, even within our own lifetime.

But have we kept up in our spiritual lives to God's expectations?

Do we observe His laws? Do we accept His teachings as true and correct?

Do we with honor and with sincerity accept the position He gave us? That of a little lower than the angels?

I am afraid that for myself I must, with shame and truth say, I am afraid quite a distance separates us.

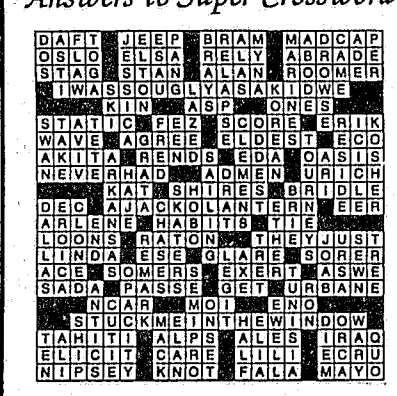

We should accept each day as the day God made and gave. We should rejoice and be glad in it, using it in living as He would have us live, being ever joyful that no matter what each day brings, we should rejoice and be glad in it, and be proud and deserving to be one of His chosen.
